McHenry has landed a manufacturing institution which gives promise of growing into a business of no mean proportions, and this, too without the outlay of a nickel on the part of the citizens and only a comparatively small effort on the part of the business men of that city.

The new acquisition to the industrial population of McHenry is the Standard Diamond Drill company of Chicago. The officials of the company were in McHenry on Monday of last week, at which time a deal was consummated whereby they became the owners of the old creamery building in the west end of the city.

The "500" club of Grayslake composed of 20 ladies, with Mrs. Louise Thomson as president, has purchased a drinking fountain, which will be installed in the new park. The fountain will be presented to the Community club, which has undertaken to beautify and equip the park.

Flames against the bleak sky, rising high above the background of the white snow on the ground, marked the passing early Thursday of an old landmark, the former "Dick and Dell" resort for some time known as the State Line Inn which was destroyed by fire Thursday morning. The fire began perhaps about midnight but was detected for the first time about 1:30 a. m.

John Schmidt, the proprietor, and his wife, who were asleep in their beds while the flames crackled about them, were rescued by the bartender of the place, Joseph Schubert, who came home from a trip downtown in Kenosha to find the inn in a blaze.

The loss caused by fire was estimated at $20,000.

The old inn is on the north side of the road, a few miles south of Kenosha near the State Line road. During its history it has from time to time excited much comment, and has several times been raided. John Schmidt, the proprietor of the place, has just completed a new hotel across the way.

Mrs. Mamie Orent, 55, of 5201 S. Sangamon street, Chicago, died at the Victory Memorial hospital at six o'clock last Thursday morning from injuries sustained in an automobile accident near Libertyville the previous Monday afternoon fulfilling a prediction that the woman had last summer in which she declared she would die before January 1, 1925.

So strong was her belief that she would die before the year was up, that she selected her casket, paid for it, and had it put away for her at the J. F. Eudeliks undertaking rooms at 4605 S. Hermitage avenue, Chicago.

The jury and coroner John L. Taylor returned a verdict in the Wetzel and Peterson mortuary that Mrs. Orent died from injuries to her spinal cord caused by being pinned under an automobile.

Libertyville, Lake Bluff and the territory between them along the Libertyville branch of the Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee electric line are undergoing some interesting developments, with the stage apparently set for still bigger things to come. Samuel Insull, the Insull corporations and individuals generally considered close to him have been extremely active in this section during the last year, and this activity is regarded as significant throughout the territory affected.

It is considered probable that construction of the North Shore line northward from Niles Center to the junction with the Libertyville branch west of Lake Bluff may be undertaken sooner than the announced plans of the road would indicate, possibly by next spring after the extension from Evanston to Niles is completed.

In Libertyville the purchases of the Insull interests have aroused considerable speculation, and the report has long been current that the North Shore line contemplated an extension northward from Area, the present terminus of the Libertyville branch, to tap the lake region of northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin.

New Recreation Parlor to Open On Saturday

The opening of the Hunt Recreation Parlor, announced for Thursday (Thanksgiving day) has been postponed until Saturday, Nov. 29, at 5 p. m.

Mr. Hunt has provided a recreation center for Antioch equal to any in Lake county. With a brick structure building 35x120, he has installed four modernly equipped bowling alleys, three pocket billiard tables and one carom table.

He has further recognized the need of comfort and convenience of his patrons with the installation of an up-to-date iceless soda fountain, cigars and candy.

One of the features of the new building is its correct and best possible lighting effect, that is so essential in an establishment of this kind. And perfect ventilation is afforded the comfort of bowlers and billiardists.

Plans are now underway for the formation of bowling teams among the men, and a meeting for women's teams is already set for Monday afternoon at 2 p. m.

Antioch Section Rt. 21 Taken Over by State

Unearth Indian Skeletons on the Hasselmann Farm

Two Indian skeletons have recently been unearthed in a gravel pit on the farm owned by Mrs. Lena Hasselmann just south of Wilmot. Mrs. Hegeman's sons Charles and George have opened a new pit on the farm just in front of their home. They had a depression about 40 feet long and 20 feet wide and were about three feet in the ground when Charles prying the gravel loose with a crow bar rolled out a human skull. Mr. Hasselmann sent for Dr. Becker of Silverlake, the Salem Township Health officer, and the digging proceeded under his supervision.

The first skeleton taken out was in a sitting posture, an Indian custom of burial and the bones were in a perfect state of preservation. Dr. Becker said there was no doubt about the skeleton being that of an Indian as it failed to come up to the required measurements of a white person. The teeth in this skull were remarkable for their perfection. Every tooth but one was intact and none were missing.

The second skeleton was discovered a few days later. The bones were not in such good condition and crumbled when the air reached them. However, the manner of death meted out to this Indian was very apparent. Dr. Becker discovered an arrow head imbedded in the first lumbar vertebrae showing that the Indian had been shot through the abdomen. Dr. Becker has this specimen and the bones of the first skeleton on exhibition at his office in Silverlake. He intends exhibiting the vertebrae and the imbedded arrow head at the next meeting of the Kenosha Medical society. It is his theory that these Indians met death during a skirmish battle and were hastily buried. Clay pottery, that crumbled when brought to the air was found near each. A very definite hand design can be traced upon the pottery.

A board with pieces of bone upon it was thought to have been the resting place of a papoose when it was buried. The bodies are thought to have been buried over 100 years as the Hasselmann family owned the farm for 57 years and John Gauger Sr., before them. Mr. Gauger lived until 98 and the relatives of either family do not recall a burial ground for whites or Indians there.

At present no gravel is being taken from the pit but the Hasselmann brothers are soon to start working there and there may be more skeletons taken from the mound.

LOOKS 5 WAYS AT FIVE POINTS AND HITS ONLY POST

Joe Fincutter of Libertyville, embodies all the principles of safety first and always which probably can be attributed as the main reason that he moved down a telegraph post at Five Points Sunday. Joe steaming along in his Ford truck looked to the rear as he came to the five crossroads. He looked straight ahead. He looked to the left, and twice to the right. He looked up and then down. Nothing was coming, going or standing still. Bang. He had hit the only post at the 'Point' and the truck panted and groaned under the impact. Joe was not hurt as much as the truck.

Plan Lights By Popular Subscription

Committee Appointed to See Every Merchant on Main Street

The business club took up the matter of street lighting Monday night, and after hearing representatives of the General Electric company and the Central Electric company the club appointed a committee consisting of Robert C. Abt, Chase Webb, George Bartlett and W. R. Williams to visit the merchants and see if the lights could be installed by popular subscription.

Facts brought out at the meeting showed that practically all the cable has been laid, and figures show that the cost per front foot to the merchants would be about $1.00.

The estimates supplied by the General Electric company are as follows:

25 Union Metal Standards complete with globes, cap-poles, series sockets and globe holders at $39.75 each	993.75
25 400 candlepower Mazda lamps at $2.60 each	65.00
650 feet No. 8 single conductor wire at $80.00 per 100 ft	52.00
1 7.5 K. W. R. C. constant current transformer	375.00
2 lightning arrestors	13.80
1 time switch	100.00
Total	$1,599.55

The club looked at the two models of posts and the second model called for an addition of $66.25 to this total. This is the lamp that was on display at the Viegell Hotel last year.

The lamp quotation calls for 400 candlepower lamps. A 250 candlepower lamp will call for a deduction of $21.25 from the estimate. Figures were also given for unit transformers, assuring safety from any accident by a pole being knocked over and charged. These units were $23.50 each.

The Public Service Co., gave an estimate of cost of maintenance as follows:

250 candlepower, dusk till dawn	$36.49
250 candlepower, dusk till mid-night	24.33
400 candlepower dusk till dawn	49.02
400 candlepower dusk till mid-night	32.67

This includes the care of globes and painting of posts once a year.

The matter of maintaining the lights brought out a statement from Mr. Bartlett that he thought the village would maintain 9 of the lights that will replace the nine lights now installed. The question of maintaining the other lights will be up to the merchants.

The estimate arrived at by the club at the $1.00 front foot is derived as follows:

25 single transformers	625.00
Cost of material	$1,599.55
Labor	300.00
Total	$2,524.55

The total front footage on Main street from Johnson street to the creek is 2600 feet, making a cost of practically $1.00 front foot.

The maintenance of lights for the 250 candlepower for 25 lights, bus-tructing the 9 lights that the village will probably maintain, leaves 16 lights at $24.23 (dusk till midnight), $398.23, costing per front foot per year about 15 cents; 400 candlepower 25 lights at $32.67 (dusk till midnight) $816.75, approximately 31 cents a front foot. From this the village will pay their share of lights.

NO EXCUSE NOW TO DRIVE WITHOUT LIGHTS

Kane county motorcycle traffic officers now carry a supply of light bulbs for all types of automobile headlights. When a motorist is found driving in that county with a headlight or tail light out he is given an opportunity to buy a new bulb on the spot. If he refuses he is arrested.

Wm. P. Sullivan Seriously Hurt in Auto Accident

William P. Sullivan, 33, president of the Fox Lake Real Estate Company, 10 S. LaSalle street and a brother of Assistant State's Attorney Eugene Sullivan, was found dying near the wreckage of his automobile in front of 5975 Elston avenue early Monday. He died two hours later at Montrose Avenue hospital, without recovering consciousness.

No witnesses to the accident could be found. Sullivan's machine had crashed into a tree just within the curb, throwing him to the street. His brother, Eugene, told police that the victim was a careful and excellent driver and that he believed he either ran over the curb to avoid a speeding machine or lost control of his car.

George Rice, 6206 Ludian avenue, Forest Park, a taxicab driver, saw the smashed machine and stopped to investigate. Hearing groans apparently from the porch at the residence there, he ran up and found Sullivan, bleeding from numerous wounds, trying to crawl up the steps of the porch. Rice awakened Leroy Smith, who lives at that place, and they hurried Sullivan to the Montrose hospital. He died, from loss of blood, without being able to tell how the accident happened.

Sullivan lived with his father, Wm. L. Sullivan, and his brother, at 1109 N. Robey street. He had spent Sunday at Fox Lake, and was returning home when the fatal crash occurred.

Hand Crushed in Corn Shredder is Amputated

Henry Hertle, 35 years old, of Grayslake, had his left hand crushed late Saturday afternoon while "feeding" a corn shredder. The heavy mitten which Hertle was wearing at the time caught in the gears and drew his hand into the crusher, cutting his five fingers off and crushing the wrist. Hertle braced him self against the machine so that he would not be dragged further into the shredded and kicked the clutch with his foot stopping the machine.

Hertle's cries for help attracted several fellow workmen who extricated his arm from the shredder and rushed him to the office of Dr. J. L. Taylor at Libertyville. Dr. Taylor administered first aid and then took Hertle to the Victory Memorial hospital where he amputated the man's hand at the wrist.

OETTING ICE HOUSE MAKING WAY FOR SUBDIVISION

EAT TURKEY SLOWLY IS THANKSGIVING ADVICE

"Take plenty of time to eat your Thanksgiving dinner, eat as much as you require, but chew twice as long and eat half as much as usual," is the summary of the weekly bulletin of the health commissioner.

"The stomach has no teeth. It is a good slave, but talks back when imposed upon by indiscretions of diet," says the commissioner. Moderation is urged as a means to obtain greatest food value and enjoyment out of your meals at all times as well as on Thanksgiving day.

Milk Producers Appoint Their Own Tester

Report Bowman Is Cutting Price; Arrest Duchek for False Checks

The adjourned meeting of the Antioch Local of the Milk Producers association was held Friday night. A report from the committee appointed to compare the test sheet with the October statements was made by Frank Hahn.

Mr. Hahn stated that out of the 135 patrons at the local plant they had compared 86 statements of patrons with the test sheet and found 68 statements short on the test, and in dollars and cents found a shortage of $327.91.

L. J. Molzahn, a licensed tester from Wauconda was present, and gave some advice as to how best to secure a test. Mr. Molzahn will make arrangements to secure a test at the plant for the local association.

There have been numerous reports that the Bowman company has posted notices to the effect that they will receive milk from their patrons on the basis of their summer supply, and that all over that amount will be paid on the butterfat basis. It is understood that the association will take this matter up and try and get the full price for this month.

This method of curtailing winter surplus will eventually have to be recognized by the farmers, and will in the end work out best to their advantage.

It is reported that the milk board will try to secure a $2.50 price for the coming month.

The Salem Cooperative Products Company has gotten under way and seem to be making progress. Their biggest difficulty is in holding the men together. It was reported that several of the producers up in that section were hauling to Bristol and other plants and accepting a $1.90 price.

Duchek Taken Into Custody

Charles Duchek, who took over some of the milk taken away from the plant at Lake Villa, when sellers refused to pay the association price was arrested in Chicago Saturday and taken to Waukegan on a charge of issuing a large number of fraudulent checks.

Among the many complainants are Dan, Herbert and Ed Sheehan, Walter Dibble and A. H. Pierstorff, all of the Deep Lake district, Antioch township. These men alleged that he gave them worthless checks totalling more than $500.

According to the sheriff's office there are reports of other deals.

Duchek has been purchasing milk and cream from the farmers of Lake county. He claims that he had made arrangements to borrow $5,000 in Chicago, and that upon the strength of the loan he issued the checks expecting to deposit the borrowed money by the time the checks were presented for payment. However, the lender turned him down and now he is in jail.

He has put up $500 with the sheriff and expects to be able to settle with all those who have preferred charges against him, when he arraigned.

Duchek claims that he acted in good faith and that none of the dairymen who hold his checks will lose anything.

He was taken to Waukegan by the Deputy Sheriff D. A. Weale late last Friday night.

WILL CONDEMN FOR ROUTE 22 IN HALF DAY

Condemnation proceedings in order to get a right of way from Lake Zurich to Waukegan road for Route No. 22 will be started soon, according to Charles E. Russell, county superintendent of highways. Most of the property owners along the proposed route have signed up but the residents in Half Day are making excessive demands, highway officials believe. Work on the road is to be begun next spring.

BRUNSWICK-BALKE-COLLENDER CO.

Find Morphine Caused Death of Area Woman

Cold science, rather than gossiping tongues Monday bared last intimate detail in the home life of Mrs. Walter Stark of Area, wife of the former deputy sheriff, when chemists reported that a quantity of morphine had been found in the dead woman's stomach.

Coroner J. L. Taylor, of Libertyville, received the information just before noon. Immediately he went into conference with States Attorney A. V. Smith. The conference, he admitted, was more or less a personal talk as to what his conduct would be in the case.

With this last bit of information to the domestic tragedy, that has found discussion in many county homes, comes the story of her final letter, written the day before her death to a favorite sister, Miss Frieda Schael of Evanston.

"Oh, dear, oh, dear, my brain is paralyzed," ran the last line of the pitiful note that bequeathed all her treasured gifts to the sister.

The letter made no mention of Walter, the children of her future intention.

It stated, in a pathetic way, that she was sending $80, drawn from the bank that day, to her. This money, she wrote, was hers, and no one knew she had it. The little gifts she had collected through her married life and many had been given by Miss Schael.

"The letter," Dr. Taylor said, builds up a train of circumstances that fits well with the finding of the morphine.

Mrs. Stark was found dead Nov. 9, lying on the lounge in her home. Her two boys found her. She was fully clothed, and it appeared as if she had just dropped down on the couch for a rest.

Dr. Taylor and his associate, Dr. Penny of Libertyville held an autopsy that day. The vital organs of the body appeared normal, and the two doctors agreed that the death cause could not be discovered by them. So they turned over the contents of the stomach to chemists.

A week went by during which time a bottle of poison was found in the home. Quick tests, by the chemists, found that this poison was not in the system of the dead woman. They began to despair of finding a cause for death, until Monday when chemists reported morphine had been found in the system.

The discovery of morphine comes as a denouncement to a long chain of events, inspired mostly by gossip, a few facts, then more gossip.

Walter, who was the Adonis of the sheriff's forces, had not lived with his wife for two months, was, one rumor. His home, it was said, was in Waukegan.

Sometimes his boy, "Buddy," a four-year-old youngster, who was declared the most perfect child in the county by state doctors, came to visit him at the sheriff's office. He was never accompanied as far as the office by his mother.

Then came even more hideous reports. Recently there was a divorce pending in the county court, started by a Waukegan woman. Walter made efforts to locate newspaper men, it was his intention to keep the story out of the papers, it was said. It was printed. He had taken the woman's husband to Elgin a few weeks before when he was committed there by a jury of doctors in the county court when he was found insane. The woman made the trip.

Once, shortly before, he was arrested in Libertyville by Alfred Garland, motorcycle policeman, on a charge of speeding.

"The woman with him," said Garland "hid her face. I could not see her."

Stark said, when questioned, that he had been on business. The sheriff's office verified this statement, but did not know who his companion was, at that time.

He severed connections with his county post a few weeks ago. Stark was scheduled to make a trip to Omaha for R. B. Morris, charged with forgery. Some difference arose. There were several stories cropping out explaining the difference between Stark and the sheriff. He called at the county clerk's office, after a conference with Ahlstrom, and demanded his full check.

Stark was a good officer. He made hundreds of friends through the county during his two years as a deputy. He often worked long hours without complaint, and was courageous. Two months ago he began to grow morose. He seemed to change.

Since the death he returned to Area. He is there now, it is believed, although the sheriff's office states they do not know his whereabouts.

Pass Bond Issue for New Paving

A bond issue of $365,000 for the providing of funds during the 1925 season was made certain recently when the county board by a vote of 15 to 2 directed the highway commissioner and the county highway committee to prepare the proper resolutions for such a bond issue for the concreting of nine miles of the Silverlake-Twin Lakes road from its intersection with the Geneva road southward, for the continuance of the paving on the Somers road two miles and for the extension of the paving on the Burlington road three miles in the town of Paris.

This is the program which was outlined several days ago by Highway Commissioner John F. Herzog and designated as the less extensive program for the year. It can be carried on and completed and the bond issue will stay within the limit set by law as not needed to be put to the vote in the county. This will enable the county to go ahead with the work during the coming season.

The board also received a petition signed by 35 freeholders in the town of Salem asking for the paving of a three-mile strip in that town and this was received and placed on file. This strip is a part of the highways in the county that are listed on the federal aid system; if the county goes ahead and paves the highway, it will merely deprive itself of the aid which would come in the future from state and federal funds. The same is true of the proposed extension of the Geneva road, which is not being contemplated for this year.

J. A. A., To Breakfast 75 Illinois

Boys and Girls on the Trip

Last call for breakfast!

This is the call that will usher about 75 Illinois farm boys and girls into a breakfast entertainment Dec. 10, given them by the Illinois Agricultural Association officials, when they go to Chicago to attend the International Live-Stock Exposition, according to information received by Farm Adviser Deersch.

Last year the Illinois Agricultural Association entertained the 70 boys and girls of Illinois who earned trips to the big Chicago stock show as rewards for superior club work.

"We wish we could entertain 75,000 farm boys and girls from Illinois instead of 75, for such is our faith in helping boys and girls learn to farm better and to stay on the farm," said Sam H. Thompson, president of the Illinois Agricultural Association, in commenting upon the breakfast entertainment.

Souvenirs will be given.

Game & Fish News C. F. Mansfield Jr. Secretary of the Federated Sportsmen of Illinois

Representative Geo. A. Williston, of Chicago, member of the committee that drafted the present Game and Fish Codes, in an interview, said that he considered the section which provides a jail sentence for every violation, one of the most important provisions of these laws.

According to Mr. Williston this puts a most effective weapon in the hands of the wardens when they are dealing with the market hunters or the habitual violators that care nothing for a small fine.

By a special law every justice of the peace was given jurisdiction in all cases arising from violation of the Game and Fish codes, even to the giving of jail sentences. This is also very important as it enables the wardens making the arrest to take the case before a justice of the peace to get a quicker trial and decision with lower costs than would be possible if it were necessary to await the action of a grand jury and trial in a circuit court.

Although Mr. Wm. J. Stratton is making every effort to secure effective enforcement of the Game and Fish codes he is greatly handicapped by an insufficient force of wardens, and the lack of cooperation by the sportsmen.

The sportsmen are the persons most vitally interested in enforcement of the Game and Fish laws, but up to the present they have shown but little in the way of encouragement to the wardens in their efforts to secure enforcement. The action of the Federated Sportsmen of Illinois in appointing a committee to receive complaints of violations and to aid the officers in securing evidence, and getting convictions marks a step in the right direction.

Mr. Stratton should be able to make an enviable record in law enforcement during the next four years, but it is up to the sportsmen to see that he is informed of all violations and if necessary the other law enforcing officers and the justices and courts should know that the decent citizens are opposed to lawlessness and want certain and heavy punishment meted out to all violators, regardless of wealth or political influence.

ONE ON THE SARGE

An American sergeant in Germany learned that the little town in which he was located had once been the home of Martin Luther. Desiring more information, he asked a German speaking doughboy to get the facts from some of the residents.

A day or so later the doughboy, writhing in merriment, went to see him.

"By gosh, that's one on you, sarge," he chortled. "That guy Luther you've been asking about? Say that baby's been dead three hundred years."

Demand Action Against Orgies in Roadhouses

Alleged lawlessness at the taverns along the South Sheridan road between Kenosha and the Wisconsin state line has aroused that section of the countryside, according to reports. The respectable residents of that community are demanding some action be taken to put an end to the almost nightly orgies that are taking place along the highway.

Rumors of various kinds of lawlessness are rampant in the community. One of these rumors declares that armed thugs are constantly at one of the taverns to hustle out any who may be "unwelcome" for one reason or another.

One well established report declared that a man had been blackjacked when he entered one of the taverns several nights ago in order to take a friend of his from the bar. The friend, it is said, was partly intoxicated and the man, who was attacked, desired to get him out of the tavern before he got into trouble.

It is claimed that one of the "regulars" around the tavern, drew a blackjacket and struck the man over the head and then drawing a gun ordered him out of the place. This affair, it is said, has been reported to officials.

Another rumor tells how a group of Halloween guests halted at one of the taverns. One of the party was dressed as a wild west cowboy and in keeping with the costume had a holster and unloaded revolver. This was the cause for a scene when he entered the tavern as one of the so-called "housemen" rushed him for the gun and refused to return it.

Another rumor, which could not be entirely substantiated, declared that it was almost a nightly occurrence to see liquor delivered under cover of darkness. One story tells how the "nightly supply" several days ago was left by a truck many yards in the rear of one of the taverns. A motor party who happened to be nearby watched the unloading of the truck and investigated to find a generous supply of gin, whiskey and other liquors. It was claimed that the bartender found the shipment considerably short on that occasion.

There are also reports of "parties" both of men and of men and women, which last long into the night and into the early morning. Residents of the district are demanding that something should be done to put an end to the reign of lawlessness existing there.

Olechna Tells Details of Sobeck Killing

Thos. Olechna, 42, who was captured in Detroit, Mich., Friday, and is in the Lake county jail on a charge of murder, related to States Attorney A. V. Smith, Deputy Sheriff Lester Tiffany and Detective James McQueeney how Joseph Sobeck, 47, was slain with an axe by Dominik Enrice, 32, at the cottage the three occupied at 717 Broadway avenue, Libertyville, on the night of Nov. 9.

Olechna, who claims he did not participate in the fight in which Enrice and Sobeck engaged, told practically the same story that Enrice told in his alleged signed confession, in which Enrice admitted he killed Sobeck with the axe that Olechna and Enrice had purchased that day.

Olechna stated that all three had been drinking wine but that they were under the influence of the liquor but that they were not intoxicated. Practically the only difference in the story told by Olechna was that Enrice and Sobeck quarreled over payment of their share of the electric light bill. Enrice's alleged confession was that they quarreled over sharing the payment for the wine.

Olechna said he saw Enrice strike Sobeck two times with the axe and that the latter fell to the floor and apparently was in a dying condition when he fled from the place. According to Olechna's story he apparently rushed from the place before Enrice left. This does not correspond with Enrice's story, who stated the Olechna apparently spent the remainder of the night in the house because he saw Olechna leaving next morning with a violin under his arm, when he returned after roaming the streets of Libertyville.

It was at first believed the man had been murdered, and that the motive was robbery, as Sobeck had expected to withdraw considerable money from a Libertyville bank, where he had $2,000 on deposit, expecting to send some of the money to Poland to have his wife and children join him in this country.

When Enrice was taken into custody the first time by Marshall Dennis Lemberry, that fact was not known to the states attorney's and the sheriff's offices, and Deputy Tiffany and Detective McQueeney spent several days looking for Enrice in Chicago. Enrice was about to be released when the county authorities learned of it and brought him to the county jail on a warrant. A partial confession convinced the authorities that they had the right man. A search was then started for Olechna as a material witness. Olechna was traced to Detroit, where he formerly was employed, through friends in North Chicago.

Much credit for the capture of Enrice and Olechna is due the states attorney and Deputy Tiffany, who kept the trail hot after they learned that the two men had disappeared. The feeling around Libertyville was that Enrice was innocent.

The two men have not yet been arraigned and are being held without bond. The inquest probably will not be held until some time this week. States Attorney declared.

THE BUNGED MESSAGE

The new boy's boss looked up from a slip of paper on his desk and said: "Look here, son, I can't make head or tail of this telephone message. for me if I can't read it afterwards?" "Well, you see, sir," said the new boy, "the gent's voice was so indistinct."

Potz, Serving Life Sentence, Seeks Pardon

Ignatz Potz, convicted at the 1922 March term of circuit court in Lake County of the murder of William C. Petersen, Winthrop Harbor motor-cycle policeman, and sentenced to life imprisonment in the state penitentiary at Joliet, is seeking a commutation of sentence or parole. Formal notice at the 1925 January session of the State Board of Pardons, was made by his sister, Mrs. Katherine Strachot, 1633 West 18th street, Chicago.

The murder of Petersen occurred on January 13, 1922. Potz and three Chicago companions, Joseph Bradaseric, Michael Radich and James Bartole, had borrowed an automobile from a Chicago saloonkeeper, and had driven to Kenosha, where they imbibed considerable liquor. Bartole was driving the machine.

The speed at which the car was being driven through Winthrop Harbor caused Motorcycle Policeman Petersen to take up the pursuit. At a point near the Mrs. Mary Durkin farm in South Sheridan road between Zion and Waukegan, the officer drew up close behind the speeding car.

Suddenly there was a roar and a spurt of flame as a shot gun was discharged through the rear window of the machine. Petersen, his body riddled with shot, slumped from his motorcycle and fell into the road.

The four men in the vampire car escaped to Chicago, but eventually were apprehended and brought to Waukegan for trial.

Bartole swore on the witness stand that Potz, who had been sharing the front seat with him, had ordered him to slow down the car as the policeman arrived close behind them, and then standing up had fired through the glass window in the rear.

Potz offered the defense that he had imbibed so much wine that he could not remember anything that happened in the machine after they left Kenosha. Witnesses testified to the fact that it was necessary to carry him into the car.

The jury found Potz guilty of murder and freed the other three occupants of the car. The court sentenced Potz to be hung.

Everything was put in readiness for the execution, even to the setting up of the gallows in a room over the circuit court room in the court house. Attorneys for Potz made an eleventh hour effort to save his life by appearing before Governor Small, who was in Waukegan at the time. For hours the attorneys presented their case feverishly.

Meanwhile Potz sat in his cell in the county jail and watched the clock off the minutes that brought him nearer eternity. At midnight six hours before the hour set for the execution, Gov. Small, swayed by the plea for clemency, and the dying wish of his wife that he prevent the state from inflicting the death penalty, commuted the sentence to life imprisonment.

There are many among those who had an opportunity to study all angles of the case, who always have expressed the belief that it was not Potz who fired the fatal shot. Among these is former Sheriff Elmer Green, now state superintendent of prisons. His recommendation may go a long way toward obtaining a commutation or pardon.

Nothing Escapes the War's Curse

The man who ran the elevator of the skyscraper was talking to a passenger.

"The judge certainly did soak him," he said. "He sentenced him to three years and ten days. Now I understand the three years all right; but what the ten days were for I'd like to know?"

"That was the wartax," said a quiet citizen who got aboard at the tenth floor.

GENERAL HINTS

To Clean a Vase

Dissolve a tablespoon of rock salt in ½ cup of vinegar. Put this mixture in vase or glass; shake well for a few minutes. Rinse in clear water.

To Keep Vases Sweet

A sprig of ivy in vases will keep water in vase pure.
A lump of sugar put in water with flowers will prevent any disagreeable odor.

Know Your Furnace

Learn to know your furnace. Don't just make a fire and expect your furnace to do the rest.

1. Tend to your furnace regularly.
2. Do not shake too hard or too often.

3. Clean the ash pit daily.
4. Wet ashes before removing from pan.

5. Before shaking a low fire be sure your fuel has caught.

6. Always poke a hard coal fire from the bottom.

7. Never use any explosives, kerosene, gasoline or turpentine to start a new fire.

COOKING AND BAKING HINTS

Waffles

2 cups of flour (sifted).

4 teaspoons of baking powder.

¾ teaspoon of salt.

1½ cups of milk.

2 eggs.

1 tablespoon melted butter.

Little sugar (¼ of a cup).

Method: Mix dry ingredients—add milk, then yolks of eggs beaten; then melted butter. Mix well. Just before frying, add the whites of eggs beaten stiff. Fry on a hot griddle.

Pancakes

2 cups of flour (sifted).

1 egg.

½ teaspoon of salt.

4 teaspoons of baking powder.

2 cups of milk.

2 tablespoons of shortening—lard or butter.

Method: Mix dry ingredients, add beaten egg, milk and last, the melted shortening. Fry on hot griddle.

Pancakes or waffles are good for breakfasts, light suppers and Sunday night tea.

Cranberry, Apple and Quince

2 cups cranberry pulp.

2 cups apple pulp.

2 cups quince pulp.

¾ cup of walnut meats.

1 orange (juice and grated rind.)

4 cups sugar.

Method: Cook altogether until thick.

Party Cakes

2 eggs.

1 cup of light brown sugar.

¾ cup flour.

¼ teaspoon baking powder.

¼ teaspoon salt.

1 cup nut meats.

Method: Beat the eggs together.

Add sugar. Then, flour in which the baking powder has been sifted, also salt; stir all together well. Dredge nut meats and add to cake; bake in small muffin pans. This makes 24 little cakes.

Hint for Frying Eggs

To fry eggs so that they look nice is not as hard as it seems. Melt a small amount of fat, less than ordinary, in frying pan. Pour into edge of pan a small amount of hot water, 1 tablespoon to skillet; break egg into a saucer, slide into pan, cover closely. This is much quicker than poaching and the good appearance is certain.

NO EGGS TODAY

The balanced dry mash before the hens all the time is the biggest factor in egg making. "No eggs today" will be your answer on the phone if you do not feed your hens properly or have good housing and ventilation for them.

Keep before the hens at all times—(a) plenty of fresh water; (b) limestone of oyster shell; (c) one of the following dry mash:

Mash A.—Equal parts of corn meal, ground oats, middlings, bran, tankage or meat scrap.

Mash B.—Bran, 10 lbs., middlings, 10 lbs., tankage, 5 lbs.

If you are feeding skimmed milk, six gallons of milk consumed may replace five pounds of tankage. If the flock does not consume six gallons but instead it consumes only an average of three gallons then we must retain in the ration 2½ lbs., of tankage in Mash B.

Feed scratch feed in litter, feeding more in evening (in time for the hens to clean up before dark) then in the morning so as to induce the hens to eat more mush during the day. For 100 hens feed daily, a total of 10 lbs., cracked corn, 5 lbs., oats and 2 lbs., wheat.

Gridiron's "Ace of Aces"

Football experts of the country are unanimous in their choice of Harold "Red" Grange for a place on their mythical All-American teams. And rightfully so for the University of Illinois star is without a doubt the greatest player on the American gridiron since the days of Willie Heston and Walter Eckersall. Neither the east or west has any other one lone star who can compare with this wonder of the season.

Grange won an All-American position last year already, but his playing this season was nothing short of phenomenal. Particularly so in the Illinois-Michigan game when he ran back the first kick-off for a touchdown, after receiving it on his own five yard mark. In that same game, he registered four touchdowns in the first twelve minutes of play, each after a long, spectacular run through the entire Michigan team—a feat that perhaps may never be seen again.

Grange was elected captain of the 1925 grid team at a banquet held at Urbana last Monday evening.

MEETING COMPETITION

A young matron in whom the shopping instinct was strong, asked a German butcher the price of Hamburger steak.

"Twenty-five cents a pound," he replied.

"But," she said, "the price at the corner store is only twelve cents."

"Well," asked Otto, "why don't you pay down there?"

"They haven't any," she explained.

"Oh, I see," replied the butcher, "then I don't have it, I sell it for ten cents."

DAWN OF KNOWLEDGE

She: "You told me, before we were married, that you were well off."

He: "I was, but didn't know it."

Illinois Faces Clover Seed Shortage

Illinois faces the greatest shortage of cloverseed in its history and the farmers' salvation is to grow alfalfa, according to a statement by the Blue Valley Creamery Institute. The statement is based on government figures, just made public, which show this year's production to be the lowest on record.

Production was poor in 1923, the total in the state dropping from 315,000 bushels in 1922 to 128,000 bushels. This year the production is only 110,000 bushels or 86 per cent of last year.

The crop report just issued shows that the total production of cloverseed in the United States this year is estimated at 817,000 bushels as compared with 1,100,000 last year and a five-year average of 1,610,000 bushels. Last year approximately 24,000,000 pounds of cloverseed were imported to make up the deficiency in America but Europe has a shortage this year also and probably will have little cloverseed for the United States.

Red clover seed prices already are high and are likely to go higher. Fortunately, both alfalfa and sweet clover have produced larger crops than usual this year, alfalfa being one third larger, so farmers of the nation are urged to seed with alfalfa. It will be more economical than to practice thin seeding which is so frequently done when cloverseed is scarce as now.

RAIN INSURANCE COMPANIES DEPEND ON WEATHER BUREAU

Information on which insurance companies establish their rates for rain insurance is based as far as practicable upon statistics of average rainfall for various parts of the country, including the distribution of rainfall through the year and for the various hours of the day, obtained from records of the Weather Bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture.

In determining the amount of rainfall that has occurred in a particular place during a period covered by a policy, the companies also make use of the official records of the Weather Bureau whenever there is a station of the bureau at the place in question. There are more than 5,000 Weather Bureau stations of all kinds, including cooperative stations, in the United States, all of which are equipped with standard rain gauges. However, at the great majority of these stations the rain gauges do not make a continuous automatic record, and therefore special arrangements must be made with the observers if readings are desired for times other than the regular hours of observation.

Where there is no Weather Bureau observer available, the company's agent and the policyholder jointly select a competent person to read, at the required time, a rain gauge which is furnished by the insurance company. There are about 36 companies writing rain insurance in this country. They have organized a Rain Insurance Association with headquarters in New York City, and one of its principal functions is to maintain a list of persons throughout the country who are qualified to read rain gauges.

A CLEAN STORY

Higgs (reading the advertisements): "Say, what is a guest towel?"

Biggs: "A clean towel."

A "Water-Lily!"

As attractive as the most beautiful water-lily that ever bloomed. That's what natives of Tampa, Fla., still think of Miss Virginia McEae—their city's lovely candidate in the last National Bathing Beauty Contest, held at Atlantic City, N. J. They insist she is the most beautiful mermaid in the land and, regardless of what the judges in the national event decided, the Floridians remain unshaken in their opinion.

Looking at the above picture we're inclined to agree with them. It shows the pretty MissMcEae clad in the novel bathing costume in which she won the title of "Miss Tampa" from a field of fifty other beautiful aspirants and before an audience of thousands.

Weather Reports Help In Keeping Egg Basket Full

With cold weather close at hand farmers and poultrymen can use weather reports to good advantage in avoiding costly slumps in the egg production of their flocks, according to Dr. L. E. Card, Chief of the poultry division of the College of Agriculture. Most poultrymen are depending on pullet flocks for an income at this season of the year and if these layers are subjected to undue exposure their egg production may be affected for many weeks to come, he pointed out.

"Drops in temperature come with such a rush that the pullets are subjected to bitterly cold weather before they become hardened. During unsettled weather, especially it is well to watch the weather reports and if there is danger of a cold wave during the night to make sure that the flock is as snug and warm as possible."

The College of Agriculture will send 48 sheep, 45 hogs and six fat steers from its purebred flocks to the twenty-fifth anniversary session of International Livestock Exposition to be held in Chicago the first week in December, it has been announced by H. P. Rusk, head of the animal husbandry department.

STEPPING AHEAD OF THE BANK CROOK

Bankers Association Official Gives Rules to Foil Criminals and Avoid Loss.

By JAMES E. BAUM.

Manager Protective Department American Bankers Association

The direct cost of all crimes in this country has now reached its highest peak. Statistics reveal startling increases in nearly every type of crime during the past ten years. The total financial loss through the operations of criminals is estimated at more than $3,500,000,000 for this year. A few of the items follow:

Embezzlement	120,000,000
Credit frauds	400,000,000
Burglary larceny and petty thefts	250,000,000
Forgery including worthless and bogus checks	100,000,000
Seaport robberies	100,000,000
Insurance frauds	25,000,000
Railroad thefts	1,700,000,000
Stock frauds	1,000,000,000
Insurance frauds	75,000,000
Arson	50,000,000
Miscellaneous	75,000,000

I am giving cold figures not to startle any one unless it be toward more extreme care in handling and safeguarding funds and valuables. Right here let me quote rules to help foil criminals known as "check passers" or "scratchers"; they will help you to avoid serious loss:

1. Never write checks with a pencil. Use pen and ink or, if possible, a check protector.

2. Fill in all blank spaces.

3. Don't erase. Errors should be corrected by writing a new check and destroying those incorrectly written.

4. Never give a blank check to a stranger and never cash a stranger's check without an indorsement which you have positively verified.

5. Make checks payable to "cash" or "bearer" only when you personally present them at your bank. Otherwise use the name of the person you intend to receive payment.

6. Never place your signature alone as an indorsement on checks you intend to deposit. Write above or below your signature the words "For deposit only."

7. Never sign blank checks. If you expect to be absent any length of time open a separate account subject to check of your employee or agent.

8. Guard your cancelled vouchers as you would a valuable check leaving none where they may be easily taken.

9. Keep your check books securely locked up and be careful how and where you store them.

10. Beware of the name of the word "certified." Ordinary certification stamps can be duplicated almost as easily as any other check.

11. Water checks which apparently bear the makers' or bank's official approval. They are more easily forged than the full signature.

12. Safeguard your checks as you would your money. For this reason, money is not safe.

13. Destroy all checks which are no longer needed. They are more easily forged than the full signature.

14. Water checks which apparently bear the makers' or bank's official approval. They are more easily forged than the full signature.

day more than 95 per cent. of the business of the U. S. is transacted by the use of checks or other credit instruments. That means about six and one-half billion checks will be written by bank depositors in this country during 1924 and they will total about $500,000,000,000 in amount, or one hundred times the money in circulation.

Banks War on Crooks

The average bank depositor when queried as to what his bank does to protect his deposits, will probably tell you they are kept in a great vault and that armed watchmen are employed, as well as an elaborate and efficient burglary and robbery alarm system. He may not know that the 23,000 banks comprising the American Bankers Association have constantly and conveniently available an army of highly trained specialists who wage a continuous and relentless warfare against the bank criminal. These operatives are within easy reach of any member bank. Criminals know that if they attack a member bank they are attacking one of the most powerful and effective protective organizations in existence.

Another medium by which bankers prevent many financial crimes or losses is the warnings continually broadcast from the American Bankers Association and forty-eight state bankers associations. These warnings keep the trap constantly set and carry out the Association's plan of crime prevention as contrasted with detection.

Danger Ahead

American farmers should not increase their wheat acreage for 1924. If they increase the acreage by three million acres, as is indicated by the intentions to Seed Wheat Survey of the government, and normal conditions again prevail in other wheat producing countries, next year's wheat market will be glutted and once more wheat prices will be ruinously low. The present high price of wheat is due to poor crops in other countries and in certain sections of the United States. W. M. Jardine, Advisory Council, Agricultural Commission, American Bankers Association.

Where Bankers Come From

The smaller localities are to a large extent the recruiting ground for the profession of banking. A recent survey discloses the fact that of 632 bank officers in the largest cities of the United States 466 or 60 per cent. were born in the country or in small towns.

Of the 632 senior bankers of large cities 127 or approximately 20 per cent. had a high school or college education. The conclusion is reasonable that the smaller environment coupled with an education makes for success in the banking field. American Bankers Association Journal.

G. W. Bradley
Heads New Service Dept.

The Public Service Company includes in its organization a Department of Public Relations and Service whose function as its name implies is to secure close relations with the public and to improve its service. It is in charge of C. W. Bradley, Vice President, and includes on his staff a Service Engineer, H. T. East. Group meetings of employees are being held in the various territorial districts of the Company. Their purpose is to impress upon them the importance of giving customers and others every attention.

An officer of the Company says on this point: "Employees of the Public Service Company were quick to see that the Charles A. Coffin Award carried with it something more than honor, namely, an obligation to live up to the reputation the Company had won. Britton I. Budd, President, in giving the employees a large measure of credit for the winning of the medal, pointed out that our efforts to render real service would have to be continued, and even increased, if we were to hold the high honor bestowed upon us. Many signs indicate that the members of the organization, from top to bottom, have accepted this obligation and intend to hold the place they have made for the Company at the top."

"It has been demonstrated that the word Service stands for more than a continuous supply of gas or electricity of suitable pressure. Good service is essential but it alone will not develop the good will of the public. These things customers expect, pay for and have a right to demand, so it only natural that they do not feel specially pleased upon receiving them. It is the little extra attentions courtesies and expressions of a genuine desire to serve which are not expected that build good will. It is human nature to react to pleasant treatment and to appreciate any kindly personal service which may be received. If this comes from public utility employees the Company will quickly become known as a public servant with a soul and be a source of pride to the community in which it operates."

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of dear mother, Mrs. John Drury who passed away on November 26, 1923.

'Tis hard to break the tender cord,
When love has bound the heart,
'Tis hard so hard to speak the word,
Must we forever part?

Dearest mother we have laid thee,
In the peaceful grave's embrace,
But thy memory shall be cherished,
'Till we see thy heavenly face.

We miss thee from our home dear,
We miss thee from thy place;
A shadow o'er our life is cast,
We miss the sunshine of thy face;
We miss thy kind and willing hand,
Thy fond and earnest care;
Our home is dark without thee,
We miss thee everywhere.

One by one earth's ties are broken,
As we see our love decay,
And the hopes so fondly cherished,
Brightened but to pass away,
One by one our hope's grow brighter,
As we near the shining shore;
For we know across the river,
Wait the loved ones gone before.

Judith of BLUE LAKE RANCH

By JACKSON GREGORY

COPYRIGHT BY
CHARLES SCHUBERT'S SONS

"What does the woman's intuition find to be the mysterious gentleman's interest in a certain Miss Langworthy?" he asked lightly.

"It tells her that he likes her; that it would be fun for him to come and play with her; that he would be kind and courteous; but that he considers her very much as he would a foolish little butterfly!"

Again she startled him. He looked at her wonderingly. But before he could frame a bantering reply, Marcia had involuntarily gripped at his arm with a look upon her face that first was sheer bewildered astonishment, and was crying for him to look yonder.

Judith had come. Across the floor, now nearly deserted, Bud Lee and Marcia stared at her. She was coming toward them, her dainty slippers seeming to kiss their own reflections in the gleaming floor. It was Judith and not Judith. It was some strange, unknown Judith. A wonderfully gowned, transcendently lovely Judith. A Judith who had long hidden herself, masquerading, and who now stepped forth smiling and bright and vividly beautiful; a Judith of bare white arms, round and soft and rich in their tender curves; a Judith whose filmy gown floated about her like a sun-shot mist; a Judith whose skin above the low-cut corsage was like a baby's, whose tender mouth was a red flower, whose hair was a shimmering mass of bronze-brown, whose eyes were Aphrodite's own, glorious, dawn-gray; a Judith of rare maidenly charm; a glorious, pulsating, triumphant Judith.

It might have been just because it was fitting that they should greet their hostess so; it might have been because the men and women who saw this new Judith were caught suddenly in a compelling current of admiration, that above the hum of voices rose from everywhere a quick clapping of hands as she came through the room. The color of her cheeks deepened, her eyes flashed a joyous acknowledgment of the greeting, and bright and cool and self-possessed she came on to Marcia.

"Marcia, dear," she said, taking Marcia's two hands—and Bud Lee found that even Judith's voice had taken on a new note, deeper, richer, gladder, fraught with the quality of low music—"forgive me for being late. I wanted to be here every little second to see you enjoy yourself." She put her lips closer to Marcia's ear, whispering: "You are the prettiest thing tonight I ever saw!"

Marcia shook her head, her eyes filled with frank wonder. "Don't fib, Judith, dear," she answered. And, for Marcia, she was very grave. "I know you have a glass in your room. You wonderful, wonderful Judith!"

Their voices were indistinct to Bud Lee. Now at the moment when she was so rich in the splendor of her own sweet femininity he filled his heart with her. Judith had come in the only way Judith could come, surrendering herself utterly to the hour.

She turned to him, no surprise at his own costume in her happy eyes, and gave him her cool hand. A swift tremor ran through him at the contact, a tremor which was like that of the night in the cabin, which he could not conceal, which Judith must notice. She said something, but he let the words go, holding only the vibrant music of the voice.

She had stirred him, and now he did not seek a theory for a buckler; the sight of her, the brushing of her fingers against his, made riotous tumult in his blood.

The first strains of a waltz joined the lure of Judith's warm loveliness, whispering, counseling, commanding: "Take her." Marcia gasped and stepped back, startled by the look she saw in the eyes of this man who, having spoken no word since Judith came, put out his arms and took her into them. Judith flashed at him a look of quick wonder. His face was almost stern; no hint of a smile had come into his eyes. He merely caught her to him as though she were his, and swung her out into the whirl of dancers.

"You are rather—abrupt, aren't you?" said Judith coolly. "Am I?" he asked gravely. "I don't know. It seems to me that I have been loitering, just loitering while—"

He didn't attempt to finish. He held Judith in his arms while for him the room was emptied of its gay throng, the music no longer pulsed; its beat was in the rhythm of their bodies, swaying as one.

The dance over, she was lost to him in the crowd of men who came eagerly to her. His eyes followed her wherever she went. A slow anger kindled in his heart that she should let other men talk with her, that she should suffer another man to take her in his arms.

A number of country dances followed. He stood by the door waiting a little before he went again to Judith. He saw Marcia across the room beckoning to him with her fan. There was nothing to do but to go to her. He frowned but went, still watching for Judith. Marcia wanted him to meet some of her friends. He shook hands with Hampton, was introduced to Rogers. Marcia explained that Mr. Lee was the gentleman who achieved perfect wonders in the education of his horses. She turned to introduce Farris, the artist. But Farris broke into Marcia's words with a sudden exclamation.

"Dave Lee!" he cried, as if he could not believe his eyes. "You! Here!"

"Hello, Dick," Lee answered quietly. "Yes, I'm here. I didn't know that you were the artist Hampton had brought up with him."

Farris' hand went out swiftly to be gripped in Lee's. Marcia, mystified, looked from one to the other.

"You two know each other? Why, isn't that—"

She didn't know just what it was, so stopped, looking frankly as though she'd like to have one of them finish her sentence for her.

"But," muttered Farris, "I thought that you—"

"Never mind, Dick," said Lee quickly. And to Marcia's mystified expression: "You'll pardon us a moment, Miss Langworthy? I want to talk a little with Mr. Farris."

His hand on the artist's elbow, Bud Lee forced him gently away. The two disappeared into the little room off the library where Jose was placing a great bowl of punch on the table.

"Que hay, Bud," grinned Jose. "Your 'ol nose smell the booze d—n quick, no?"

He set down his bowl and went out. Farris stared wonderingly at Lee.

"Bud, is it?" he grunted. "Breaker of horses, hired man at a dollar a day—?"

"Ninety dollars a month, Dick," Lee corrected him, with a short laugh. "Give a fellow his true worth, old timer."

Farris frowned.

"What devil's game is this?" he demanded sharply. "Isn't it enough that you should drop out of the world with never a word, but that you must show up now breaking horses and letting such chaps as Mrs. Simpson's Black Spanish chum with you? Not a cursed word in five years, and I've lain awake nights wondering. When you went to smash—"

"When a Lee goes to smash," said Bud briefly, "he goes to smash. That's all there is to it."

"But there was no sense, no use in your dropping out of sight that way—"

"There was," said Lee curtly, "or I shouldn't have done it. It wasn't just that I went broke; that was a result of my own incompetence in a bit of speculation and didn't worry me a great deal. But other things did. There were a couple of the fellows that I thought were friends of mine. I found out that they had knifed me; had helped pluck me to feather their own nests. It hurt, Dick; hurt like h—l. Losing the big ranch in the South was a jolt, I'll admit; seeing those fellows take it over and split it two ways between them, sort of knocked the props out from under me. I believed in them, you see. After that I just wanted to get away and sort of think things over."

"You went to Europe?"

"I did not. I don't know how that report got out, but if people chose to think I had gone to take a hand in the fighting over there, I saw no need to contradict a harmless rumor. I took a horse and beat it up into the coast mountains. I tell you, Dick, I wanted to think! And I found out before I was through thinking that I was sick of the old life, that I was sick of people, the sort of people you and I knew, that there was nothing in the world but horses that I cared the snap of my finger about, that the only life worth living—for me—was a life in the open. I drifted out this way. I've been living my own life in my own way for five years. I am happier at it than I used to be. That's all of the flat little story, Dick."

"You might have let me know, it seems to me," said Farris a bit stiffly.

"So I might," answered Lee thoughtfully. "I was going to in the first place. But you'll remember you were off somewhere traveling when the bubble broke. When Dick Farris travels," and his grave smile came back to him, "let no mad letter think that it can track him down. Then I hit my stride in this sort of life; I grew away from the old news; the years passed as years do after a man is twenty-five; and I just didn't write. But I didn't forget, Dickie, old man," he said warmly, and his hand rested on Farris' shoulder. "You can put it in that old black pipe of yours and smoke it, that I didn't forget. Some day I planned to hit town again, because I know, and remind you of auld lang syne."

"You are a fool, David Burrill Lee," said Farris with conviction. "Look here; you can take a new start, pull yourself together, come back—where you belong."

But Lee shook his head. "That's like the old Dick Farris I used to know," he said gently. "But this is where I belong, Dick. I don't want to start over, I don't want to come back to the sort of thing we knew. The only thing in the world I do want is right here. And I don't see that it would do any good for you to go stirring up any memories about the old Lee that was shot somewhere in France."

When Farris had to go and claim a dance, Lee watched him with eyes soft with affection. Then he, too, left the room and went back to the outer door, to his old spot, looking for Judith.

"The only thing I want is right here," he repeated softly.

He watched Farris join Marcia and Judith. He noted the eager excitement in Marcia's eyes, saw her turn impulsively to Farris. The artist shook his head and left them, ostensibly going in search of his partner. Marcia was speaking excitedly to Judith. Lee frowned.

Once more that night he held Judith in his arms. He meant to make amends for his brusque way with her before. But again the magic of her presence was like a glorious mist, shutting them in together, shutting all of the world out. They spoke little and the music had its will with them. Judith did not know that she sighed as the dance ended. She seemed moving in a dream as Lee led her through the door. They were out in the courtyard, the stars shining softly down on them. In the subdued light here he stood still, looking down into her pleasure-flushed face. Again the insistent tremor shot down his blood.

Here in this tender light she looked to him the masterpiece of God striving for the perfect in a woman's form. Her gown, gently stirred by the warm breeze, seemed a part of her, elusive, alive, feminine. The milk-white of bare throat and shoulder and rounded arm, the rise and fall of her breast, the soft lure of her eyes, the tender smile upon her lips, drew him slowly closer, closer to her. She lifted her face a little, raising her eyes until they shone straight into his.

"Judith," he said very quietly, very gravely, making her wonder at the tone and the words to follow: "You have had your way with me tonight. Do you understand all that means? And now—I am going to have my way with you!"

He caught her in his arms, crushed her to him, kissed her. Then he let her go and stood, stern-faced, watching her.

For a moment he thought that the hand at her side was rising to strike him full in the face. But he did not move.

Had such been Judith's intention, suddenly it changed.

"So," she cried softly, "this is the sort of fine gentleman into which a dress-suit has made Bud Lee, horse foreman! For so great an honor surely any woman would thank him!"

She made him a slow, graceful courtesy, and laughed at him. And so she left him, her laughter floating back, taunting him.

Lee watched her until she had gone from his sight. Then he turned and went down the knoll, into the night.

Save Your Stock from Mineral Starvation

There has long been a need among livestock and poultry raisers for a real, high-class, scientifically-compounded Mineral Feed made by a reliable, experienced company.

It has long been known that the general ration did not contain the necessary minerals for healthy, high-producing animals. Just what minerals were needed and how much is of recent discovery.

Prominent stockmen and poultrymen are now using minerals. Agriculture Experiment Stations Recommend

EIGHT MILLION CATTLE SUPERVISED FOR T. B.

More than 8,000,000 cattle throughout the country are now under supervision for the eradication of tuberculosis.

State and Federal veterinarians are carrying this work forward at the rate of nearly a half-million cattle tested each month. A recent summary prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture on the work up to the end of September reports that 449,484 cattle were tuberculin tested during that month. Of this number 16,732—about the usual proportion—were found to be tuberculous. Animals found to be diseased are immediately segregated for slaughter in accordance with regulations governing the disposal of such animals which are sources of infection.

States most active in the current work are shown by the report to be Iowa, where during September 64,079 cattle were tested; New York, with 54,238; Wisconsin, with 45,954; and Illinois, with 43,448 cattle tested.

The large number of cattle owners who have placed their animals on the waiting list shows that the work is popularly supported. At the end of September this list included 2,681,543 cattle. The limited official forces engaged in this work are making strenuous efforts to comply with the increasing demand for tuberculin testing.

FARMERS OBJECT TO CONSOLIDATED SCHOOLS IN STATE

A majority of Illinois farmers look with disfavor upon consolidated schools, if answers to questionnaires sent to farm bureau members by the Illinois Agricultural association can be taken as an average. Three-fourths of the farmers who replied to the 10,000 questionnaires were opposed to consolidated schools.

The objectors to consolidated schools voiced their reasons as follows: bad roads; other school system satisfactory; distance from home too great, too expensive to maintain, too hard to get children to school, taxes higher, disadvantages to farmers, impractical, building not located right and too hard on little folks.

The school survey was made by the educational committee of the Illinois Agricultural association in co-operation with the Illinois Educational commission which was created last winter by the state legislature.

NEW VALUE IN SEED CLEANING

That the thorough cleaning of seed may be of advantage in addition to its value in controlling weeds has been shown in recent investigations by the United States Department of Agriculture. While studying in some of the alfalfa and clover regions of the Northwest certain stem diseases of these crops caused by nemas, organisms doing great damage to many farm and garden crops, it was found that some of the minute parasites adhere to the seeds, and in that way may be introduced into new fields or into other parts of the country.

It was learned that the first cleaning did not remove the infection and that recleaning could not be depended upon to remove the danger. However, when seed of these crops was recleaned a second time, making three cleanings in all, practically all the organisms were secured off.

Dr. N. A. Cobb, in charge of the nema investigations being carried on by the department, thinks these results are an indication that great thoroughness in cleaning seed may bring large returns in reducing the extent of various plant diseases. It is evident, in the light of these results, that from now on farmers should consider the cleaning of seed as having a greater value than the mere removal of weed seeds and those of low viability.

MEXICAN BEAN BEETLE REACHES PENNSYLVANIA

Continuing its spread, long prophesied by the Bureau of Entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture, the Mexican bean beetle by August 25, had extended its range eastward in Virginia to Craig and Carroll counties, being now nearly half way across the state. In West Virginia it had advanced from the southwestern border of the state eastward to Marshall, Tyler, and Wetzel counties, covering about three-quarters of the state. In Indiana it is only found along the southeastern border of the state in Floyd, Clark and Jefferson counties. In Kentucky it extends over practically the entire eastern two-thirds of the state. In Ohio about the southern three-quarters of the state is infested, infestations ranging as far west as the southwestern corner of the state in Butler and Hamilton counties, and northward to Hancock, Wayne and Tuscarawas counties. It has just invaded southwestern Pennsylvania, being found in Washington and Green counties. In Wyoming the pest has extended its range 30 miles north of last year's infestation.

The seriousness of this pest has been frequently described and there seems but little that can be done to control its rapidly increasing range. The department recommends magnesium arsenate spray or dust as the most promising control measure, but advises plowing under heavily infested fields as soon as the crop is off.

POLA NEGRI in

'Montmartre'

Pola Negri in a love story of the Latin Quarter of Paris sixty years ago, a place of color and romance; a vivid stage for joyous comedy or sordid tragedy, produced by the man who made her famous in "Passion," Ernest Lubitsch!

Pola is the old Pola when she acts for Lubitsch. She is a marvelous creature of fire and passion. As Yvette, seductive, alluring darling of the Latin Quarter, a care-free grisette, to whom each day is a tilt with fortune, she holds you on the edge of your seat in the cafe dancing scenes.

Montmartre is the playground of Paris, the gathering place of fashion and beauty, and the sinister Apache. Vivid, colorful, living, vital, "Montmartre" causes a sensation wherever played.

BETTY COMPSON in

The Enemy Sex

A girl of the present day in revolt—adventurous, eager and unafraid; without home-ties; with a passion to explore but not to experience, and a curiosity fed by the zest of life. She meets them all, the men of New York, the mediocre, the interesting, the powerful, the hunters, the brutes and those who seek only an amused mental relaxation. She attracts them by hook or crook, in defiance of conventions, compelling their attention in ways that at the start hopelessly mystify them and lead to misunderstandings. Then she calmly sets them right and forgives them.

"The Next Corner"

Conway Tearle, Lon Chaney, Dorothy Mackaill, Ricardo Cortez, Louise Dresser—do they mean anything in any picture? "The Next Corner" is known to hundreds of thousands of people through its publication in a woman's magazine as a serial and its success as a novel and its production on the Broadway stage as a legitimate play. It's the story of a flyer in forbidden love by a young married woman. And it's censor-proof. The romantic settings are Paris, the mountains of Spain and South America. The characters are American and Spanish. It's a production of amazing contrasts.
